

Introductory seminar to the Çankırı Karatekin University and Central Research Laboratory

Çankırı Karatekin University is a state university established in 2007 in Çankırı, Türkiye.

Çankırı Karatekin University Central Research Laboratory is an R&D center where applications and researches are carried out for the application needs of various fields with its advanced technology infrastructure and expert research staff. The aim of this center is to provide coordination between existing scientific and strategic research laboratories, research and application centers and similar units within the university; to ensure that the R&D facilities are opened for common use among the units and their effective use; to support basic, applied and interdisciplinary scientific research studies within the university by providing analysis, testing and measurement infrastructure and service.

In addition, this center is to respond to the demands of the sector by collaborating with local, regional and national industrial organizations and other private and public institutions and to contribute to those in need with test, analysis and measurement services for solving problems.

Speaker: Lecturer Emel EKİNCİ

Date: 11 May 2023

Time: 14:00

Place: Aula 3, Department of Chemistry
G. Ciamician, University of Bologna

